WHO WANTS TO FIGHT?

Conviction keeps on growing that the furious animosity of the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O., like that of two wrestlers, is not half so bloodthirsty as it seems to be.

Representatives of the two organizations have their heads together for the second time to talk about peace. This time they're being conciliatory, apparently. At least they're not trying to make headline news as they did in their first meeting.

A reason for their changed attitude is suggested by receipt of a large number of telegrams from rank and file members who want peace in organized labor. This brings into focus a fact usually ignored, that the struggle is not between Joe Doakes of Local No. 13 and his neighbor who belongs to another union trying to organize the same shop, but between the head man of Joe's union and the head man of the other union.

Neither Joe nor his neighbor wants to fight, and if they talk loud enough their head men won't want to fight either.

BACKING A WINNER

There's a careless assumption being made that organized labor leaders in New York City proved they will hold the balance of political party some day in the near future because the American Labor party polled approximately the same number of votes as Mayor LaGuardia's margin of victory.

This is supposed to be more significant than the outcome of elections in other cities, where candidates supported by organized labor were defeated.

But there's something else to think about, in connection with the New York election. Could the American Labor party have swung its members' votes to Mayor LaGuardia's opponent? Probably not. They voted for him because he was the better man.

The thought should be filed away as a sedative for the headaches being caused here and there by the suspicion that the traditional independence of workingmen at the polls somehow had been lost in the excitement of the last few years and that they now can be made to vote en masse for one side or the other by orders from headquarters.

SOCIAL ITEM

The President's visit with Mayor LaGuardia last week was purely social, say official spokesmen.

Postmaster General Farley was there, and he probably took lemon, too. The President and the mayor took sugar.

They talked pleasantly of this and that. Someone said it looked rainy and someone replied that it looked as though the American Labor party would be controlling elections in New York City from now on.

At this point there was some chaffing. "That's the outfit that killed the Tammany Tiger, Jim," the President said. Jim blushed, but tossed off the possibility of friction by explaining that the Tiger used to be invincible and how did he know it had been weakened by pernicious anemia? Anyway, they shouldn't forget Maine and Vermont.

Thus, time flew with pleasant repartee and chit-chat. It was pleasant to be together again; they must get together soon for another visit. Really, there's too little visiting done these days. Finally, a purely social call came to an end.

The new deal had climbed on the American Labor party bandwagon, it hoped, by stepping first on a teacup, then on Jim Farley's neck—and there it was, right on the front seat with Fiorella!

Every time the President talks anew about balancing the budget, he puts the date another year ahead.

If conditions compel the rest of the world to let the war in China settle itself, Japan may regret even more than other people.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, November 11

Much productive work in connection with employment, business and in dealing with those in authority is forecast for this day. The latter are disposed to show preferment and co-operation. Seek these for developing large plans and important projects, where funds are needed for expansion and improvement. Work for definite promotion while this influence lasts. In the private life, there may be some anxiety or grief concerning an elderly woman.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of opportunity and rapid progress if they will do productive work or develop meritorious projects, in which they may be justified in claiming the support of employers, superiors or those in place and power.

A child born on this day may be efficient and ambitious and may attain fame and recognition from influential personages, although it may be inclined to extravagances and social indulgences. It should gain through elders.

O. O. MCINTYRE
NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—Elmer Davis is one of the versatile litterateurs who came out of the same Indiana town—Aurora—that was also the birth-place of Edwin C. Hill. Davis is a Rhodes scholar, but one of those who never mentions it and has no truck with the pseudoliterati.

He was for a time a leading editorial writer on the New York Times and the youngest ever to contribute to that ponderous potpourri. He was also a voyager on the famous Henry Ford peace ship during the war and wrote some of the most interesting pieces about that jaunt.

About 18 years ago, Davis decided to cut loose from all salaried jobs and write as he pleased, when he pleased. And he has become one of the successful free lances, having contributed to almost every magazine of prominence in both the United States and England.

He is also the author of a dozen books, ranging from the biographical to mystery and light fantasy. Recently he has been a topical events commentator on the radio. He lives on Morningside Heights and that section is the locale of many of his stories and essays.

Henry Luce, publisher of the successful Time and Fortune, is said to be spending $5,000,000 to put Life in the same bracket. His picturing idea got away to a flying start and the problem became one of holding down circulation until advertising caught up. He is a maverick of the publishing field, each one of his magazines being touted as impractical at the kickoff. Luce was born in China, his father being a missionary. He was graduated from Yale and began his quixotic publishing adventure with a classmate, who died. His wife is the lovely Claire Boothe, author of the top hit play "The Women." She is reputed to be giving her royalties to worthy charities.

PSITTACOSIS

Recently I visited a "zoo" to which the South American parrots were the most interesting. They have a great variety of unusual colors in their feathers. These strange and vivid colors have always made them popular with bird lovers.

Frequently I receive letters from persons who are interested in purchasing imported birds, but they are fearful lest these birds carry a disease known as "psittacosis." Several years ago there was a rather severe epidemic of psittacosis, or "parrot's disease," as it is more commonly called.

Since then the public has feared all parrots.

This disease is rare, extremely unusual, indeed. The infection is caused by a germ called the "bacillus psittacosis." It is found in diseased parrots and other birds of the parrot family.

It is easily transmitted to one who cares for or handles a bird affected with this disease. It rarely is contracted from a domestic parrot and only occasionally from an imported bird.

Serious Disease

When transmitted to the human, psittacosis is often a serious and fatal disease. It leads to a congestion of the lung which so closely resembles pneumonia that it is often confused with that disease. At times the infection is mild and overlooked in its early stages, but sooner or later the victim has serious complaints.

Let me assure my readers that the disease is now seldom seen. This increase in safety has been accomplished by the enforcement of certain laws concerning the importation of foreign birds. All parrots, "love birds," parakeets and canaries are rigidly quarantined before they are permitted to enter the country. These birds are given a certificate of health before they are permitted to be sold to the public. The purchaser is assured of a healthy bird, free from disease and danger.

If you are interested in buying a tropical bird, you must make sure that the bird is in good health and free from psittacosis. To do this you should demand a certificate of health from those who sell the bird. All imported birds are carefully watched for any sign of disease even while enroute to this country. This, plus a rigid quarantine, has eliminated danger of psittacosis, a danger which caused so much apprehension a few years ago.

Mrs. L. N. B. Q.—What is the cause of white spots on the skin? Even the hair, such as eyebrows, etc., change color. Is there a definite cure?

"THE SILVER RODD MYSTERY"

by Lewis Allen Browne

CHAPTER XL

Dinner was quite pleasant. Professor Lardeau was a mighty interesting talker. He related thrilling anecdotes about paintings, their discovery, theft and what-not. It was a distressingly hot evening. All the fans were going, but it was oppressive. The house wasn't modern and it hadn't had an air conditioner installed. My father-in-law cursed mildly about the heat and assured us he would have the place air conditioned at once.

We were glad to take our coffee and smokes out on the veranda.

After a while there, Sally went down to the terrace and came back with the information that the house kept away what slight breeze had come up, but that it was much cooler on the terrace.

We went down there, it was much cooler, the breeze came from the west and stirred the shrubby foliage, which was the background of our chairs.

Later, we planned, if it got a little cooler, we would make up four hands of contract. Professor Lardeau played, he said.

Dave was telling of some surfing he had had off the Pinedale point. Lardeau, I noted, wasn't at all interested. I was convinced that art and all, was his one interest in life.

Just then Professor Lardeau emitted a shrill exclamation and fell from his chair. I turned in time to put out a hand to support him.

"I have been stabbed!" he cried.

Then in the clear starlight, I saw the missing silver rod, with the blade apparently thrust into his back!

"Stabbed" I repeated, for an instant too dazed at seeing the silver rod, to think clearly.

As I was supporting Lardeau, Dave dashed for the end of the veranda where stone steps led down to the lawn from the terrace. I saw him make a headlong plunge, more like a dive than a football tackle. There was an awful "thud" and Dave's voice, "Got him!"

I extracted the blade of the silver rod, crying, "Get a doctor."

"Wait! it is no more than a scratch I believe."

Lardeau was cooler than any of us. He stood up and felt inside his coat.

"It bleeds but slightly; it is but under my arm. I—"

"Good lord, it's Mason!" Dave shouted.

Sally, Zelma, and their mother took Lardeau into the house. I ran down the stone steps to where Dave was bending over the prone figure of Mason, the "perfect butler."

"Don't let him get away!" I shouted.

"Get away?" Dave was as calm as ever. "I don't know but what he's dead. His head hits that lower step."

Major Forrest shouted for a flash light. With this we saw that Mason's head was bleeding.

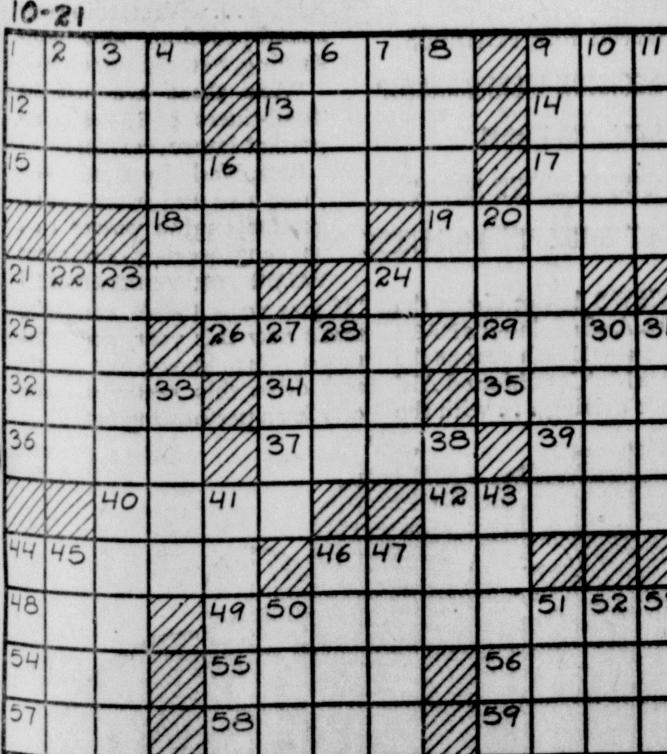

Major Forrest ran into the house to look after Lardeau.

"I'll get a doctor. I want to save this bird's life. I want him to tell us plenty." I said to Dave. "Get him up to his room, get a stretcher or something."

"Sure."

North Canton Girl Is Bride Of Homer S. Taylor, Salem

One of the most beautiful of autumn weddings was solemnized in North Canton Christian church last evening when Miss Opal Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith of North Canton, became the bride of Homer S. Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Taylor, East Seventh st.

Rev. Cossaboom, pastor of the church, officiated at the six o'clock candlelight ceremony. Vows were exchanged before an altar banked with palms and tiny white 'mums and lighted at each end by tall white tapers. The church was decorated with the palms and small white 'mums and the church aisle was lighted at each side with white tapers in tall candelabra.

Miss Kathryn Taylor, sister of the groom, was maid of honor and Margaret Sheely, little niece of the bride, was flower girl. Eugene Young served as best man.

Bride Wears White Velvet

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white velvet fashioned with short train and floor length tulle veil on a velvet band. She carried an arm bouquet of white roses. Miss Taylor wore rust velvet with gold accessories and carried peach and deep pink roses. The little flower girl was dressed in a long aquamarine taffeta frock with orange velvet sash and carried a small colonial bouquet of yellow and white baby 'mums.

Preceding the ceremony, the organist, Miss Ella Geidlinger of North Canton, played "Ave Maria" by Schubert. Miss Wallace Frank of Wooster, soloist, sang "Ich Liebe Dich" by Greig, followed by another organ number, "God's Time Is Best" (Bach) and the "Bridal Chorus" from Lohengrin (Wagner). Miss Geidlinger played "Liebstrume" (Liszt) and Mrs. Frank sang "O Perfect Love" (Barnby) during the ceremony. The Mendelssohn "Wedding March" was the recessional.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on North Portage st., where 40 guests were entertained. Ten places were arranged at the bride's table which was centered with a large white wedding cake topped with miniature hearts on which were inscribed in gold the initials of the bride and groom. At either side of the cake were white tapers. Decorations for the tables and throughout the home were in white.

Mrs. Smith, mother of the bride, wore a brown crepe gown with brown accessories and corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Taylor, the groom's mother, wore thistle lace with black accessories and corsage of Mrs. George Mounts.

The class will sponsor an entertainment by Pierce, widely known magician, at the church on Dec. 2. Plans were discussed for a Christmas party to be held next month. The date and place have not been set.

Mrs. Jesse Beck led devotional service. Mrs. Gertrude Steel was in charge of the program which included reports by Mrs. George Mounts and Mrs. C. F. Evans of the International Christian church convention held recently in Columbus; readings by Mrs. Virginia Courtney, vocal selections by Mrs. Margaret Mossop.

Mrs. Walter Freet's division served refreshments.

No One Ever Kissed Her Good Night

Bad breath is death to romance. And bad breath is frequently caused by constipation. Just as headaches, sleeplessness, weakness can be produced by it, or most skin blemishes aggravated by it!

Dr. F. M. Edwards, during his years of practice, treated hundreds of women for constipation and frequently noted that relief sweetened the breath and improved well-being and vitality. For his treatment he used a purely vegetable compound—Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. This laxative is gentle, yet peculiarly effective because it increases the bile flow without shocking the intestinal system.

Help guard against constipation. Use Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. At all druggists, 15¢, 30¢ and 60¢.

HIGH BLOOD Pressure
Thousands have been helped in this simple DRUGLESS way

French doctors have discovered a new, drugless method for the treatment of high blood pressure and its associated symptoms of headache, dizziness, etc. They found that a concentrate of garlic in certain measured dosage lowers the blood pressure an average of 10 to 40 points and that this effect is prolonged by repeating the dose at periodic intervals. The report further that as the blood pressure is lowered, in almost all cases the associated symptoms of headaches and dizziness disappear.

ALLIMIN Garlic Parsley Tablets contain the essence of these ingredients in a highly concentrated form. They are specially processed and free from objectionable taste and odor. They are absolutely guaranteed to be free from drugs of every kind. They act by improving the condition, not by dulling the pain.

ALLIMIN Essence of Garlic Parsley Tablets have been thoroughly tested in actual cases of high blood pressure by Dr. Paul Damrau, eminent physician, Park Ave., New York City. Dr. Damrau has written a booklet telling of his favorable experience with these tablets. A copy of this booklet may be had free by any high blood pressure sufferer.

ALLIMIN Essence of Garlic Parsley Tablets are on sale at all good drug stores, in two sizes—50c and $1.00. When purchasing, see that you get the genuine. ALLIMIN, even if you have to insist, is the way to be sure of getting the self-same tablet used by Dr. Damrau with such favor and results. JAPS BOMBARD NANTAO SECTION

Seek to Drive Out Last Remnants of Retreating Chinese

SHANGHAI, Nov. 10.—Japanese airplanes and artillery today bombarded Nantao, Chinese quarter adjacent to the French concession, plunging the foreign area of Shanghai again into the midst of hostilities.

Mrs. Basco had lived in Lisbon for about one month. Her husband, Sim Barco, is a structural engineer now living in Derry, La.

The 20 Japanese bombing planes dropped explosives along the Nantao Whampoo river waterfront within a few hundred yards of the anchorage of American and foreign men of war.

Simultaneously, Japanese artillery in Chapei threw a stream of shells across the International Settlement and French concession into the Nantao area.

Drive Out Chinese

The attack was designed to drive out remnants of the Chinese army which retreated from Shanghai yesterday to defense lines farther inland. It followed a Japanese announcement that Nantao would be bombarded unless the Chinese troops variously estimated to number from several hundred to several thousand, withdrew.

The Japanese shells and bombs probably took a smaller toll of life than might have been expected because of wholesale evacuation of civilians from Nantao within the last 24 hours.

Chinese soldiers near the French concession border indicated they had no intention of withdrawing. Before the aerial bombardment they had withstood an attack by Japanese shock troops and had declared they would resist until death.

Bombard Airdrome Area

Planes ranging west of Shanghai bombarded the airdrome area of Nanking, the nation's capital. Some Nanking residents said they feared a resumption of extended raids which had been interrupted by Japanese intensification of the Shanghai campaign.

Chinese officials at Nanking apparently were resigned to a gradual withdrawal of Chinese troops from the Shanghai region to main line defenses inland. They saw a possibility of a temporary lull in hostilities, however, explaining that Japanese probably would be consolidating their gains and establishing some sort of puppet regime at Shanghai.

Grabs Gun, Instead

Instead, he grabbed a gun, killed the invader with one shot.

Elliott was so critically wounded hospital attendants gave him little chance to survive.

Sheriff Harry Patterson reconstructed this story of the grotesque battle.

Answering a knock at the door of the house where he lives alone, Elliott was confronted late last night by a hooded intruder, holding a flashlight in one hand and a butcher knife in the other.

"This is a robbery," the hooded man said. "I want your money!" Elliott fled upstairs, grabbed the old sword from its scabbard on the wall, and wheeled to battle his assailant. They duelled about the room and battled down the stairs.

A sudden swipe of Elliott's sword cut off the stranger's left hand. The stranger stooped, picked up the hand, stuffed it into his pocket.

"I surrender! I'll get the money!" the rancher shouted.

The man let Elliott up and attempted to stomp the floor of blood from his arm.

Elliott stumbled toward a cupboard. But instead of cash, he grabbed a gun, turned and fired. The invader dropped dead.

Elliott staggered a quarter of a mile to the home of his nearest neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schilling.

The sheriff found the stranger's body in the wildly disordered room.

The hood over his head was a barley sack with slits for the eyes.

Overpowers Rancher

Then, despite loss of his hand, Elliott was overpowered by the elderly rancher, threw him to the floor and waved his butcher knife menacingly.

"I surrender! I'll get the money!" the rancher shouted.

The man let Elliott up and attempted to stomp the floor of blood from his arm.

Elliott stumbled toward a cupboard. But instead of cash, he grabbed a gun, turned and fired. The invader dropped dead.

It's Time To Mail Those Christmas Packages Abroad

Once again the "Mail Early for Christmas" plea is issued by Postmaster Earl Beardmore.

Already gift packages and greeting cards for distant points have been mailed from the local post office.

To aid persons who intend to send letters, postcards or packages to foreign countries, the postmaster today listed the mailing dates for shipments so that delivery may be made in time for Christmas.

The schedule, which shows the latest dates articles should reach the coast ports in order for Christmas delivery, may be clipped and saved for future reference.

All parcel post packages, Beardmore points out, should be mailed as soon as possible because, due to customs formalities, the packages are apt to be delayed.

Salem-Sharon Grid Tilt To Provide Pupil-Teacher Clash

QUAKERS' COACH IS PRODUCT OF SHARON MENTOR

Schroeder Learned His First Football Under D. B. Stewart

Coach Carl Schroeder has a very special reason for wanting his Sharon High school Quakers to come through with a victory this week.

David B. Stewart, coach of the unbeaten Sharon, Pa., eleven which the Quakers meet in their next to last game of the season at Sharon Saturday afternoon, is Schroeder's old football instructor.

The Quaker coach received his first lessons in the ins and outs of the gridiron game under Stewart when the latter was coach at Massillon High school some 12 years back.

Since playing under Stewart at Massillon, Schroeder has starred in football at Wittenberg college and reached the coaching position in Salem via several smaller coaching jobs.

Stewart, in the meantime, transferred his coaching talents to Sharon, where he has a record of developing outstanding teams.

The clash between grid products of student and instructor should provide an interesting sidelight to the Sharon-Salem game.

The football systems used by both Stewart and Schroeder with their teams are exactly alike. Sharon employs the same formations as the Quakers and uses the same shift and plays.

Like the Quakers, Sharon builds its offensive attack on straight football, using line smashers and end sweeps to drive its way to the opponents' goal line. Power is the keynote of the western Pennsylvania team's offense and few passes are used in its attack.

Stewart is recognized as one of the best scholastic gridiron coaches in the tri-state area. He has turned out several prominent western Pennsylvania stars while at Sharon and developed "Big Bill" Edwards and "Dutch" Miller while at Massillon.

Edwards is now coach at Western Reserve University in Cleveland. Miller, who was accidentally killed several years ago, was one of New York university's football "greats" and ranked by the famed Chick Meehan as the best blocking back ever to perform in the east.

Although Sharon has swept its way through nine games thus far undefeated, winning eight and tying one, Schroeder firmly believes that the Quakers stand a good chance of upsetting the western Pennsylvanians.

Grid observers point out that while Sharon is unbeaten, the team has not as yet encountered real stiff opposition.

Warren provided Stewart's team with its toughest competition to date in a scoreless tie battle three weeks ago.

In addition to the scoreless tie with Warren, Sharon's record lists victories over Pittsburgh, 6-0; Beaver Falls, 19-6; Youngstown, 24-0; Oil City, 27-7; Grove City, 47-13; Greenville, 38-6; Sharpsville, 31-0, and Farrell, 20-0.

Sharon has scored 237 points to its opponents' 26 and has had its goal line crossed but four times in nine games.

Information coming from the western Pennsylvania city has it that Stewart's team plans to take things lightly this Saturday in order to be in the best of shape for a big battle with New Castle the following Saturday.

Taylor Predicts Attendance Mark

COLUMBUS, Nov. 10—Henry Taylor, ticket sale director at Ohio State university, predicted today that the 1937 football season would show a total of more than 400,000 attendance at all Buck games, compared to the 391,371 record set in 1936. He said the six-game attendance to date this year was 297,762, with Illinois and Michigan games ahead.

BOWLING RESULTS

The defending champion Salem News pulled into first place in the Class A National league for the first time of the season last night, winning three games from the Masons while the former league leaders, Mullins Foremen, lost two out of three to Bunn's Shoes.

Doutt's Service Station won two out of three games from Zimmerman Oldsmobiles and the Young Democrats took two out of three from Mullins Manufacturers in other matches.

Jim Armstrong of the Foremen had the best three game score for the night with an even 600, made on games of 191, 232 and 177.

First place position in the City Duckpin league changed hands at the Grade Crossing alleys last night as the Colonial Billiards won three games from Demings to pull ahead of Pottery No. 1 and Bliss.

Since playing under Stewart at Massillon, Schroeder has starred in football at Wittenberg college and reached the coaching position in Salem via several smaller coaching jobs.

Stewart, in the meantime, transferred his coaching talents to Sharon, where he has a record of developing outstanding teams.

The clash between grid products of student and instructor should provide an interesting sidelight to the Sharon-Salem game.

The football systems used by both Stewart and Schroeder with their teams are exactly alike. Sharon employs the same formations as the Quakers and uses the same shift and plays.

Like the Quakers, Sharon builds its offensive attack on straight football, using line smashers and end sweeps to drive its way to the opponents' goal line. Power is the keynote of the western Pennsylvania team's offense and few passes are used in its attack.

Stewart is recognized as one of the best scholastic gridiron coaches in the tri-state area. He has turned out several prominent western Pennsylvania stars while at Sharon and developed "Big Bill" Edwards and "Dutch" Miller while at Massillon.

Edwards is now coach at Western Reserve University in Cleveland. Miller, who was accidentally killed several years ago, was one of New York university's football "greats" and ranked by the famed Chick Meehan as the best blocking back ever to perform in the east.

Although Sharon has swept its way through nine games thus far undefeated, winning eight and tying one, Schroeder firmly believes that the Quakers stand a good chance of upsetting the western Pennsylvanians.

Grid observers point out that while Sharon is unbeaten, the team has not as yet encountered real stiff opposition.

Warren provided Stewart's team with its toughest competition to date in a scoreless tie battle three weeks ago.

In addition to the scoreless tie with Warren, Sharon's record lists victories over Pittsburgh, 6-0; Beaver Falls, 19-6; Youngstown, 24-0; Oil City, 27-7; Grove City, 47-13; Greenville, 38-6; Sharpsville, 31-0, and Farrell, 20-0.

Sharon has scored 237 points to its opponents' 26 and has had its goal line crossed but four times in nine games.

Information coming from the western Pennsylvania city has it that Stewart's team plans to take things lightly this Saturday in order to be in the best of shape for a big battle with New Castle the following Saturday.

Champions Find It Not So Easy to Remain On Top Again

By BILL BONI

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—The football champions of a year ago are finding out it's a tough assignment to stay on top of the heap.

As the 1937 campaign draws to a close in the nation's seven major football conferences, only Duke, defending its Southern conference title, is in a favorable position to repeat.

With Eric (The Red) Tipton and Elmore (Honey) Hackney as holdovers from the 1936 outfit, the Blue Devils have won all seven of their conference games, but they face their biggest hurdle this week in North Carolina.

Nebraska Had Been Tied Twice, Both Times by Better than Ordinary Football Teams.

Nebraska had been tied twice, both times by better than ordinary football teams. This is the reason the possible overconfidence on the part of the Pitts. Nebraska, however, beat both Minnesota and Indiana. Which accounts for the crowd.

It was assumed that Captain John Stokes, line coach, would take over the duties of Sasse. University President G. D. Humphrey said Sasse, confined to his bed, resigned yesterday on orders of his physician.

NAME MEDWICK LEADING STAR OF SR. LEAGUE

Cardinal Batting Champ Chosen Most Valuable Player

By DREW MIDDLETON

NEW YORK, Nov. 10—Joe Medwick, the payoff guy of the St. Louis Cardinals Gashouse Gang, has the National league's most valuable player award for 1937 to add to his record string of batting "firsts."

"Muscles" did all he could to earn the prize. He won the batting championship, led in hits, runs batted in and doubles and tied with Bunn's Shoes for the home run title. Even so he barely nosed out Gabby Hartnett, the spirited Chicago catcher, who drew 68 votes to Joe's 70.

Eight members of the Baseball Writers' association made the selection. They gave Gabby more first-place nominations than Medwick, but Muscles more than made up that deficit with votes for second and third place to grab the award and the Sporting News trophy.

During the past season, Medwick compiled a batting average of .374; he hit safely 237 times, batted in 154 runs and hit 57 doubles and 31 home runs.

Carl Hubbell, the shrewd, smooth left-hander of the New York Giants, who won the award last year, was third choice with 52 points.

Two newcomers to the headlines, the Boston Bees' venerable rookie pitchers, Jim Turner and Lou Fels, wound up third and fourth. They edged out such well known players as Dick Bartell and Mel Ott of the Giants and Paul Waner of Pittsburgh.

In balloting among the eight writers—one from each of the seven cities and one borough in the league—a first place vote counted ten points, second nine, and so on for ten selections. Medwick drew two first-place nominations. Hartnett each was selected twice on a second-place ballot, but Medwick got four third-place nominations while Hartnett's votes were strung out, one each for third, fourth and sixth.

Medwick is the third Cardinal to win the award since the baseball writers took over the selection in 1911. His manager, Frankie Frisch, was chosen in 1931, when he still was a great second baseman. Dizzy Dean, at the top of his pitching powers, took it in 1924.

THEATER Attractions

Irene Dunn and Cary Grant are co-starred in the clever comedy, "The Awful Truth", which will be seen at the State Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Miss Dunn's first comedy role in "Theodora Goes Wild" established the fact she is an excellent comedienne as well as a dramatic actress.

Agree to Disagree

Miss Dunn and Grant, husband and wife in the film, have agreed to disagree at the opening of the picture and have taken their marital difficulties to the divorce court. They are still in love, however. The divorce action is complicated by the fact that both want the custody of "Mr. Smith", the brown and white wire hair terrier that was "Ast" in "The Thin Man".

The much talked about "They Won't Forget", drama based on mob violence, concludes tonight at the State.

Hale (Edward Norris) is a newly-coming northerner, teaching a class of young girls in a southern business college. Mary Clay, a pupil (Lana Turner), is found murdered there. Hale and Tump Redwine (Clinton Rosamond), a Negro janitor, are the only two known to have been in the building at the time of the killing.

Andy Griffin (Claude Rains) is district attorney but wants to be governor. He needs something to cast the spotlight on him. He knows it would be easy to convict the poor Negro, but that wouldn't be enough. So with diabolical shrewdness he builds up a circumstantial case against Hale and at the same time fans the fires of sectional prejudice.

Communication Fails

Hale is convicted and sentenced to death. The governor commutes his sentence to life imprisonment, so that some day perhaps his innocence may be established. But on his way to prison he is seized by a mob and lynched.

Rotary Hears Lower

A talk by Floyd Lower of Lisbon, farm bureau agent for Columbiana county, was heard by Salem Rotarians at their weekly noon meeting at the Memorial building Tuesday.

Lower discussed the problems of the present day farmer in comparison with the farmer of many years ago. R. S. McCulloch was chairman.

District Governor O. D. Everhart of Barberon will make his official visit to the Salem club next Tuesday, it was announced.

Firms Frightened

He gave no specific pledges to the industry but his remarks were interpreted in some quarters as bearing on complaints that administration policies have "frightened" utility firms from proceeding with construction programs.

The committee of utility executives recently said it has "a vast untapped reservoir of jobs outvalling the programs of the PWA and WPA," and that the industry has fallen $2,600,000,000 behind its normal construction schedule.

If utilities would adopt what he called the common law method of valuation and capitalization, Mr. Roosevelt said, the administration would be able to go along. He said that in such an event, the utilities could expect a virtual monopoly subject to the decision of municipalities to have their own power distribution systems.

At the capitol there also was news of interest to business. A house tax subcommittee tentatively proposed that the present capital gains levy be eased by permitting a carryover of losses from one year to the next.

MONKS GARAGE SHOWS WILLYS

Prices of One of Motordom's Most Beautiful Cars $96 to $112 Below Any Other Car

With the announcement of new prices of all 1938 models for the Automobile industry, the relative price position of the Willys now reveals the cost of this car to be from $96 to $112 below the next lowest priced car of equivalent model in the industry.

Prices on the Willys passenger car line start at $499 for the coupe. The next competitive low price on a coupe model is $695, both prices being f.o.b. point of manufacture, before federal or other taxes.

In the sedan line, Willys is now priced at $112 below the next nearest competitive model.

In the coupe model, Willys is continuing the same low price maintained on the lowest cost passenger car model built last year by Willys-Overland Motors, Inc.

The current competitive position of Willys, in view of the general upward trend in prices throughout the entire range of automobiles, is stronger than when the car was first announced a year ago.

Improvements in the 1938 Willys include advancements in appearance, additions contributing to comfort, mechanical changes affecting flexibility of operation, and general economy.

The new 1938 Willys models are now on display at Monks' Garage, W. State st.
